If you have a digital camera, but are sometimes frustrated that the images you take don't reflect what you have seen, then this is for you. You don't need to have a lot of photographic knowledge, just a wish to improve your photography and get the most out of your camera.

Alvecote Wood is 20 acres of ancient semi-natural oak woodland just outside Tamworth in North Warwickshire. We are managing it as a site for wildlife and for use by community groups. It provides many and varied photo opportunities, as well as a lovely learning environment.

The day will be split into six sections, concentrating equally on artistic and technical elements of photography, so that at the end of the day you should be able to take images that are well composed, properly exposed and that tell the story that you want to tell. It will be interactive, with plenty of practical exercises, and we hope everybody will participate to make the event enjoyable.

The event will cost £15, excluding meals/drinks, payable on the day. Please be advised that there are no toilet facilities other than a simple latrine on site and that you will need to bring with you a packed lunch and drinks for the day. Hot drinks will be provided. If the weather is good, a campfire may be available and overnight camping is available upon request.

Places are limited so early booking is recommended
